SUB-VIVING

This lecture explores the Anthropocene and the promise of negotiated being. Liberation from oppression and exploitation, freedom from domination, sovereignty over the self, autonomy, have all helped define viability in the face of class, patriarchal and colonial oppression in twentieth century literature. Is it still viable to aspire for such ‘liberated’ modes of existence in the face of the Anthropocene?

Friday 27 March
4.10 PM
Sulzberger Parlor,
Barnard Hall,
Barnard College
Reception to Follow